1. Introduction

The Society for Conservation Biology (SCB) was formed in USA on May 8th, 1985. Its members comprise a wide range of people interested in the conservation and study of biological and anthropological diversity, and at its 30th anniversary year (2015) more than 5000 people across the World have become members. In year 2000 seven Regional Sections were formed;

- Africa
- Asia
- Oceania
- Europe
- North America
- Latin America and the Caribbean
- The Marine Realm

Although the SCB Asia Section (SCB-Asia) was formally formed in year 2000 it was officially launched three years later at the 2003 SCB Annual Meeting in Minnesota. SCB-Asia held its first meeting in 2005 in Kathmandu, Nepal, but despite the monumental conservation challenges in Asia, seven years passed before the second SCB-Asia meeting was held in Bangalore, India, in 2012. The third SCB-Asia meeting followed in 2014 in Melaka, Malaysia and showed an increasing trend in the number of participants with more than 400 delegates participating in the Melaka event. SCB-Asia plans to consistently hold an Asia Section meeting every two years with the next meeting scheduled for 2016 in Singapore.

Since the formation of SCB-Asia and the official launch the Section has been largely inactive except for having conducted several stimulating and increasingly popular biannual meetings. Whereas Section Boards were duly formed and presidents elected the SCB-Asia remained non-functional. At the 3rd SCB-Asia meeting in Melaka, 2014, a board meeting turned out leaderless, leaving the Section without a clear path forwards. Therefore, the board reconvened for an extraordinary Board meeting, where the existing board was formally dissolved to pave way for re-elections, however, reinstalling a temporary Board as well as a temporary President.

Following the Melaka event the assembled temporary SCB-Asia Board held two Skype-meetings and decided that it was essential to develop a Strategy Plan as soon as possible to give the SCB-Asia section a strategic direction for the immediate future. The University of Nottingham, Malaysia

2015-2018 SCB-Asia Strategic Plan

Campus, kindly offered to host the event, and the Strategy Planning workshop was set to take place on the 19-20th of January, 2015, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

In total, ten people participated in the workshop – six members of the board and four guests. Additionally, two newly elected members of the SCB-Asia board contributed to the final draft of the plan.

Participants in the strategic planning exercise in January 2015

SCB-Asia Board members:

- Ahimsa Campos-Arceiz (ACA)
- Abi Tamim Vanak (ATV)
- Lindsay Porter (LP)
- Christie Lam (CL)
- Tony Lynam (TL)
- Carl Traeholt (CT, Facilitator)

Guests:

- James Watson (SCB President-Elect at the time)
- Alice Hughes (AH, elected as SCB-Asia board member in July 2015)
- Shyamala Ratnayeke (SCB member)
- Nagulendran Kangayatkarsu (NK, SCB member)

Additional participants that contributed to the final draft of the plan in 2015-2016

- Shermin de Silva (SdS, elected as SCB-Asia board member in July 2015)
- Natalia Huang (NH, elected as SCB-Asia board member in July 2015)

2. Methods and Outputs

The main focus of the workshop was SCB-Asia as an organization – i.e. not larger regional conservation issues. To formulate a strategic plan that contributes to SCB's Mission ("SCB is dedicated to advancing the science and practice of conserving the Earth's biological diversity") as well as guide the direction of the SCB-Asia, the strategy planning workshop applied the Logical Framework Analysis approach (LFA). This format was selected, because it is an easy-to-understand and effective objective driven planning tool.

Prior to the workshop a simple questionnaire was sent to all board members requesting each participant to list a) an overall goal, b) an immediate goal, and c) five relevant issues. The returned answers were used as part of an online "brain-storming" process and to gauge participants' familiarity with the various LFA concepts (objective, outcome, output and activity/action).

The results of the questionnaire revealed limited experience across the board with objective driven planning. Some replies ended up,

- mixing objectives with actions and vice versa
- focusing on external conservation issues rather than internal organizational issues
- as long ambiguous sentences rather than short and precise statements

2015-2018 SCB-Asia Strategic Plan

Therefore, the program was adjusted to accommodate a 1.5 hour introduction to LFA and working with objectives, outputs, outcomes and activities/actions. To ensure input from all individuals, each participant identified a relevant issue, after which participants provided suggestions at large. In total 26 issues were listed and, subsequently, lumped into three thematic groups. Objectives were formulated for each thematic group and listed according to priority. The prioritizing process was undertaken by simple votes, where each participant was given five (5) sticky dots for “voting”. All five votes could be used for the same Objective, if a participant perceived it important enough.

A total of eight objectives were formulated and prioritized. These were combined into four (4) main objectives under which a number of relevant Outputs and associated Actions/activities were identified.

3. Strategic Objectives

For each of the four Objectives the group identified Outputs and associated actions. For these, a focal person(s) and a time-line was attached to ensure that the action progress accordingly.

The highest priority was afforded Objective 1 that concerns internal operational issues of the SCB-Asia Board. It was deemed essential that the Board become functional before any other Objectives could be fulfilled.

The participants decided that the Strategic Plan will be for 4 years and a new plan will be developed after the 2018 meeting.

Objective 1: SCB-Asia is fully operational and compliant with SCB's bylaws

Objective 2: SCB-Asia Section is well recognized as the leading organization promoting conservation science and practice in the region

Objective 3: SCB-Asia is a facilitator to strengthen the capacity and knowledge foundations on conservation issues at regional and national levels

Objective 4: SCB-Asia as a platform for members to raise concerns over critical issues requiring urgent intervention
